A New Legion of MII Users...

Bitten by the video bug for the first time, many new producers are picking MII.

Recently, I had the pleasure of being a guest speaker at the Panasonic "Proformance Tour" in the Washington DC area. The tour is a series of innovative two-day shows featuring seminars and exhibition of the latest in Panasonic gear. Each event is sponsored jointly with a dealer (most recently, CTL Communications of Silver Spring, Md.) and attracts a broad spectrum of attendees. At the Proformance Tour stop that I attended, the Panasonic DSM Jan Crittenden had expertly organized a packed event insuring a large audience for my seminar. We had our MII users booth there as we do at other similar events. The seminar subject involved advancing technology and how to deal with it. It featured addresses from a local school board representative entrusted with spending millions on integrating multimedia into the classroom, a Panasonic manufacturer's rep and myself, the facility owner. Moderated by John Rice of Rice Communications, the seminar turned into a lively interactive forum with some very intense discussion that served to reinforce the impression I have of the "techno-anarchy" that exists in today's market. I realized that as important as the obvious sales benefits Panasonic derives from this proformance venture, the biggest benefit of the event may be the valuable market feedback that is generated when potential customers get up and spill their guts "en masse".

After each of the three speakers gave short addresses about the challenges we face from our individual perspectives, we were put in "hot seats" on stage and asked to field questions. I soon realized that the audience was educating the speakers, rather than vice versa. As each audience member spoke I realized that many were entering the video production arena for the first time, from wedding videographers to teachers to entrepreneurs. From all walks of life and industry, they spoke about the challenges they faced as new videophiles, trying to determine what technology would work best for them. I couldn't help but think back when I started out in video in 1981 using a half-inch VHS camera and deck to record ship design modifications as a marine engineer. I remember my excitement when I thought about the potential applications of the video medium, unaware that it would change my entire professional career course. I could sense that same excitement from each audience member. We wrestled with issues concerning the failure to set industry-wide standards, poked fun at frequently mis-used industry vernacular such as "broadcast quality" and "on-line", and agonized over technology decisions. When it was over, several things were clear to me:

1. The "techno-anarchy" is spawning a whole new generation of first-time video producers, (a virtual baby boom, if you will).
2. Many of these users are choosing MII instead of SVHS or UVW because the price/benefit advantages are overwhelming. This would jive with recent figures that show MII had its best sales quarter ever. It would also explain why we have so many new association members who are also new to video (not just SVHS guys who are growing up.)
3. This continued surge of growth in the mature phase of the MII life cycle will once again confound the pundits that can't seem to figure out why MII and the association continue to grow, even in the alleged "digital age".

If you have the opportunity to go to a Proformance Tour event in your area, I highly recommend you do so. At the one I attended, I not only came face to face with the future, but also, probably with my future competitors.

AVID and MII: Part Two in a Series

Technical Help & Hints

by Mark R. Johnson

So you made the big decision to go non-linear and bought an Avid. Now what? Well, the best way to start is just to dive in.

Let's hope that your supplier has come to your facility and properly set up all the wiring necessary for proper operation. Chances are good that your installer is not familiar with all the possible VTR's available in today's market, let alone the individual characteristics of each VTR.

Avid recommends the use of decks with a serial remote interface with time code readers installed. Although, the listing for direct support capabilities states that the MII decks do not support any function other than logging. This is not true. Avid's testing was done with the MII protocol setup in the software on the AU-60,63,65 decks. However, with the proper settings, the MII decks will be fully supported by the Avid system. In order to have the Avid communicate properly with your MII deck, follow this setup:

1. Lift your front panel up and press the menu button on the top card. This must be done while monitoring the super output of the deck.
2. Cycle through the options until the No. 3004 screen is present.
3. Choose the "04-9P device type select: function. There are three choices under this menu, MII ID, Others types I, and Other types 2.
4. Change this function from MII ID to Other types 1.
5. Then press the set up button to the right of the menu button to save the new settings. This change should allow the MII machine greater compatibility with the Avid.

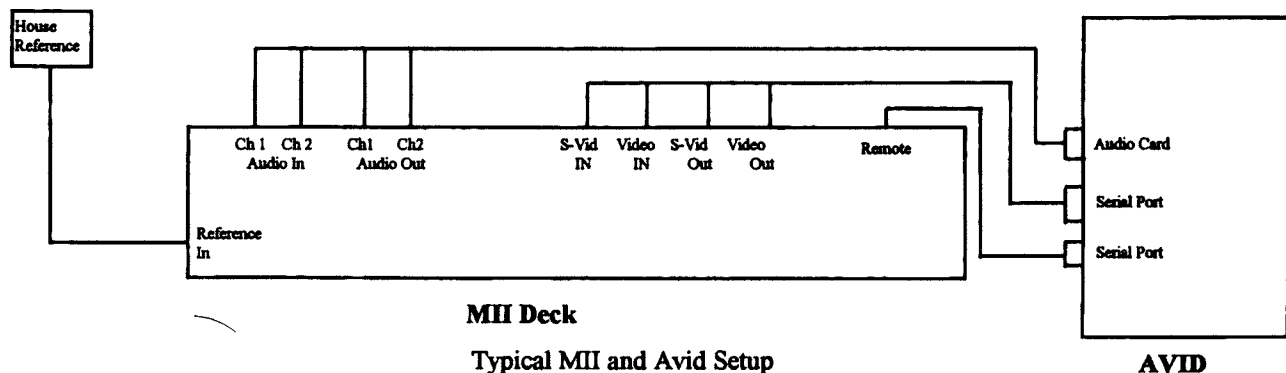

One final hint concerns the internal vectorscope and waveform monitors. These monitors only register 479 lines of video and you can only view a single line of video at a time. This makes the signal displayed very deceiving with regards to the actual signal. The best way to properly set up the monitor levels is to:

1. Enter capture mode.
2. Display the waveform and vectorscope monitors.
3. Cue up and play bars from the tape to be digitized.
4. Move line indicator located under waveform monitor to around line 450. This gives you a good black and white level signal.
5. Adjust the set-up and gain controls to desire specifications.
6. Then move line indicator to around line 20. This will give you a good level for chroma and hue.
7. Adjust the saturation (chroma) and hue controls to desired specifications.

This procedure gives you a fair estimate of the actual levels entering the Avid. Remember to occasionally check for hot spots on the actual video during the digitization process.

Another safeguard you can observe is when to have the proper in or output wires connected. I recommend that during digitizing only have wires for output of the deck connected. Contrary to that, during digital cuts or output of the Avid, have the wires for input to the deck connected and the output disconnected. This prevents feedback when the deck is in stop, which sometimes disrupts the composer screen on the Avid.

These steps will help you obtain better results from your Avid and MII system. Look for more information in an upcoming newsletter. □

Bearding? We're Still Waiting!

For the past few months we've been addressing the "bearding" issue. We're still waiting to hear from the Panasonic factory in Japan about a service procedure modification. In the mean time we've decided to let everyone hear what the Users have said. Printed here are a few letters we have received at the MII Users Association of America regarding the "bearding" problem.

Dear Dave,

I was reading the September issue of TV Technology after reading your account of the bearding problem. Well, there it was on page 102, proof that neither the WVF-700 or MII have a corner on this problem.

Bill Hubbard of Wisconsin Public Television wrote about their experience with the BTS LDK-93 coupled to a dockable Betacam SP recorder. "We experienced severe highlight tearing, also known as "bearding", when playing back video recorded by the LDK 93 camera system. BTS field service engineers worked very hard to help us determine the exact cause and solution to the problem."

I think what you are going to find is that the dynamic range of the newest cameras (especially in the dark areas of the picture) is exceeding the capability of recording systems (at least analog ones). The cameras are the cause of the problem... because they have become so good! It might be wise to delimit the causative agents to include any latest generation camera. This will give warning to owners of this equipment and also serve to prevent any falsely negative stories about this camera or that recording format.

AND:

What is called bearding is an artifact common to all tape systems that use FM to record the luminance signal (That's a lot of systems!). In an AM rf format, over modulation looks in playback mostly as white clipping. But in FM playback, recorded frequency overdeviation causes the FM detector stage to block output temporarily, until it can recover, thus the short black lines that occur on the right of a highlight. This can be seen (along with other artifacts) when playing back SP on a normal player, or playing S-VHS on a regular VHS deck. In these examples, the "S" format record uses higher FM deviation for luminance which causes the problem when the FM demodulator has too narrow bandwidth. This explains why the 3-digital MII players can avoid the bearding that shows up on other players on the very same recording, and why it does not appear in the viewfinder which is direct video, not playback confidence. It also explains why a few VHS players can handle S-VHS just fine.

The solution is NOT to increase the bandwidth of the playback FM demodulators. This will degrade Y channel signal-to-noise performance. The answer to insure that luminance channel record is always in spec. That the problem occurs during zoom suggests that it is due to a situation otherwise rarely seen in professional video -- motion. Possible offenders are:

1. The detail enhancement circuit in the camera is post clipper, solve by turning off 2H detail enhancer until Panasonic finds fix.
2. You are running NTSC instead of y/c or MII component to recorder. The deck comb filter has a 3H line detail enhancer which could also be confused by motion. Solve by using a component input to deck.

Good luck on your search for the problem source. While I don't presently record MII in field, most likely will some day.

From Larry Dean of R-VCR in Ontario, California.

AND:

F.Y.I. Regarding the issue of MII and "bearding". This phenomenon dates back to the first generation of MII. I started working on this problem with Panasonic back in Dec. of 1988. I've forwarded a copy of a letter I sent to Panasonic in February of 1989.

Dear Mr. Safar:

I am contacting you in regard to the ongoing technical problem with an AU-400 MII recorder. Since taking delivery of the unit on August 5, 1988, we have had an intermittent but continuing record problem with a AU-400 that manifests itself in the form of horizontal lines displacement in the video when played back in an AU-650 studio VTR.

After unsuccessful attempts by me to repair the problem, I enlisted the aid of Panasonic Broadcast Service Company on December 21, 1988. Service on the AU-400 was completed on January 4, 1989. The deck was returned to WPRI on January 5, 1989. Initial test showed that the deck exhibited the same problem. I again enlisted the aid of PBSC on January 13, 1989, and returned the deck for repair a second time. Service on the deck was completed on February 8, 1989, and returned to WPRI on February 9, 1989. Again, the deck exhibited the same problem. On the first occasion it was serviced; no problem was found or observed. Realignment of the FM circuitry was performed as reported on Work Order NJ0672. The second time the deck was serviced, again no problem was found or observed; however, the CTCM board was replaced as

MII and the "Threshold of the Stars"

BroGun Productions has announced the completion an hour long film on the life of space pioneer, Dr. Wernher von Braun. The film, entitled THRESHOLD OF THE STARS, is narrated by television and film star William Shatner, and includes an interview of Dr. von Braun by television personality Hugh Downs. The program originally edited on 16mm and then transferred to MII to complete editing will be offered in two versions for commercial and PBS timing, a 45 minute version and a 58 minute version.

From his interest in and later influence on modern rocketry..from schoolboy to amateur rocketeer ...from designer of the German V-2 rocket to putting men on the moon with the giant Saturn V...Wernher von Braun was, at the very least, this generation's embodiment of stalwart determination and creative ingenuity.

Using archival footage from three nations (Great Britain, Germany, and the United States) along with captured German war footage to illustrate the narration and "voice-overs" by Dr. von Braun, Gen. Walter Dornberger, Neville Chamberlain, Winston Churchill, Dwight Eisenhower, John Kennedy and an often dramatic musical score, this documentary becomes not only informative, but also entertaining... a rare combination for a biographical documentary.

Various portions of the von Braun/Downs interview are interspersed in the historical footage. Arranged in chronological fashion these bits of interview allow von Braun to tell his own story in a way a biographer could not possibly achieve. The film is more than just the story of one of this century's more prominent individuals. It is a history of modern rocketry and humanity's first steps into the next frontier ...Space.

A one-hour consumer version of this historic film is being offered on VHS video tape as a discount to MII Users for $26.95 plus shipping and handling. To obtain additional information or to order THRESHOLD OF THE STARS call 1-800-966-1030. □

Gardy McGrath Produces Informational Video Mastered on MII to Aid Women Small Business Owners in Obtaining "Star Wars" Contracts

Project for Ballistic Missile Defense Office (BMDO) features MII and a variety of state-of-the-art effects to introduce Small Business Innovative Research (SBIR) program

In support of the Ballistic Missile Defense Office (BMDO), Gardy McGrath International is completing work on a unique informational video designed to interest women-owned small businesses in competing for Small Business Innovative Research (SBIR) grants.

The production, shot with MII on location at small businesses across America, utilized every facet of the full-service production capability that GMG offers.

Opening with the portrayal of a woman business owner pondering financing options to capitalize her new high-tech idea, the video takes the woman on a journey along the information super- highway, right from her own television. The resulting trip features 3D animation and digital effect scenarios that highlight interviews with women business owners across America who've successfully won SBIR grants to develop new ideas and then applied the resulting technology to commercial markets. An elaborate set was constructed at GMG's studio to facilitate the story line which also utilized a large bay window configured to serve as a high-resolution flat-panel video screen that eventually replaces the T.V., thanks to technology the woman herself develops from an SBIR grant.

GMG's extensive Lightwave 3D animation capability featuring 12 workstations and a Raptor RISC-based rendering system was used throughout the presentation. The production was shot and mastered on MII with the assistance of a Microtime IMPACT DVE.

"This video will play at government trade shows to attract potential offerers," commented Dave Gardy, President of GMG. "We had to come up with something that would really turn heads and get people to quickly recognize the enormous potential opportunity of an SBIR grant. It had to be as innovative as the SBIR program itself. MII allowed us to really go wild with the "information superhighway" thanks to the quality through multilayering." A prior presentation GMG developed featuring SBIR grant winners in the southwest won a 1994 Telly award. □

Maintenance Software

Brian Roos, the Senior Field Engineer for Panasonic's Broadcast Engineering and Service Division in Norcross, Georgia, has developed a computer database with step-by-step instructions for performing routine maintenance on most models of Panasonic MII equipment.

The instructions found in this database are meant to be a "user friendly" companion to the maintenance procedures found in Panasonic's service manuals. Procedures for adjusting RF, A/C heads, tape tension, linear audio, and mechanical presets are included; as well as a flow chart illustrating the proper order in which to make these adjustments.

Although not 100% complete the database provides information for the following models: AU-400, AU-410, AU-500, AU-550, AU-60, AU-650, AU-620, and AU-65. The database has an easy-to-use interface for viewing files, and you can print out hard copies of each procedure.

Copies of this program are available from the Association. Each disk, which has information on all of the machines listed above, costs only $15. Payment can be made by check or credit card. Simply call the Association at 1-800-966-1030 or (703) 620-6000 or fax your request to (703) 620-0451. Be sure to specify what size disk you need — 3.5 or 5.25 inch. We appreciate the effort Brian has put into this project, and we'll provide updates as he adds information about the rest of the MII line.

Canadian members, please contact Denis Orendt of Panasonic Canada, at (416) 238-2269. He'll be able to provide the disk for you. □ reported on Work Order NJ0691. On both occasions, recordings demonstrating the problem were supplied to the service center.

Here are my observations of the situation: recordings made on the deck in question and then played back on an AU-650 show that two to three lines of video are randomly shifted to the right, most noticeably on the left edge of the picture, particularly at sharp contrast boundaries. Again, it must be stressed that the problem only manifests itself when the recording is played back on an AU-650. It appears to be caused by a misclocking of the luminance data out of the TBC in the AU-650 which, in turn, is caused by an instability of the y signal recorded on the AU-400. This instability may be caused by an overdeviation of the y channel by unlocking of the limiter or failure of IC-4 (FM modulator). The problem persists despite several attempts at realignment of the y FM modulator circuitry. I do not believe that there is a problem with the AU-650s, as all other recordings from various sources (i.e. AU-550, AU-500, as well as other AU 650's) playback normally.

It is interesting to note:

- 1 - The problem does not manifest itself on any non TBC'd playback machine (i.e. AU-550, AU-500).
- 2 - The severity of the line displacement varies between AU-650's with the same recording.
- 3 - We have one other AU-400 with the same month and year serial number that has exhibited the same problem.

It is understood that the obscure nature of this problem makes it difficult to troubleshoot. I would like to extend my assistance to you in any way possible in order to resolve this problem. If you, or anyone in the service center would like to discuss the situation, please feel free to contact me at any time. I feel confident that you are as anxious as we at WPRI are to resolve the problem. Your prompt attention to this matter would be greatly appreciated.

This letter from James Costa at WPRI in East Providence, Rhode Island

These letters were in response to both the Executive Commentary and the Survey Questions addressing the "bearding" issue. If you have any questions or problems that you feel should be published in the newsletter, please send them to the Association. Many of the problems that are mysteries to Service Centers and Users get solved through communication generated by Users like yourself. □

September Monthly Survey Results

Each month, the Users Association polls users on specific MII issues and publishes the results in the next newsletter. Last month, we asked about non-linear editing systems.

(1) If you have a non-linear editing system interfacing with MII, what manufacturer is it? Have you had any interfacing problems? How would you rate the overall performance?

None or N/A      100%

(2) Are you planning to integrate a non-linear editing system into your MII facility with in the near future? Off line? On line?

No      25%      On Line      50%      On & Off Line      25%

- ♦ On line for audio, probably with "off line" reference video to be laid in via traditional tape system. Or, digital system capable of off and an line.
- ♦ We are planning to purchase either an Avid Media Composer 1000 or IMIX Videocube. Both would be fed MII and resulting video would be outputted to MII for air. We plan on using whichever machine we buy as an on line unit.
- ♦ Yes, we have plans to add AVID's composer 1000 (on-line) with extended editing and effects software. The plan is to also have a fast DAT archival system and printer with high end conversion software.

(3) If you are planning to instal a non-linear editing system, what manufacturer(s) are you looking at?

- ♦ None      ♦ AVID and IMIX
- ♦ Macrosystem GMUB (Germany), Toccatta, Vlab, etc. Newter - Toaster Flyer. Sunrise - Studio 16 (audio only)
- ♦ I've read, demoed and looked at IMIX and AVID and have researched at least 3 others. So far, AVID rep's are the only one's that have not outright badmouthed the other systems. Key factors for my choice will be, software grouping, open architecture, 3D effects, manufacturers reputation and future direction, tech. support and price.

Reed Film & Video Makes its Mark with MII

Reed Film & Video stepped into history by producing a videotape of the history of the boyhood home of Robert E. Lee, in Alexandria, Virginia.

Built in the early days of our nation, the home has quartered some of our nations greatest patriots, including Lafayette, "Light Horse Harry" Lee, and young Robert E. Lee.

And speaking of horses... Reed Film & Video produced a successful marketing video for Historic Morven Park's annual Steeplechase Races while gingerly stepping around what the horses left behind.

Morven Park also houses the National Fox Hunting Museum and was the home of both a Governor of Virginia and a Governor of Maryland.

And speaking of stepping in it... automobile technicians around the nation will soon be spared from exposure to hazardous fines from OSHA by viewing the Reed Film & Video, National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE) produced "Handling Hazardous Materials" training program, as the federal government races to enforce new regulations.

And speaking of races... Reed film & Video is the home of a number of campaign spots this political season by offering "Beta in Beta out and Quality in-between" packages which have succeeded in overcoming latent fear of MII by campaign managers in the last moments of the campaign. All of the clients have been pleasantly surprised that the picture quality and the creativity and turnaround has been better than those "Other Format" houses that by now were fully booked.

The political clients are no longer concerned about the "in-between" process, and being a superstitious lot, will return again and again to the scene of their successes, Reed Film & Video.

Does this article read like a press release? ... Sure it does!

This is no time to be modest!

Send your press releases to the MII Users Association and let us know what you are doing out there...!! □
